Larry G. Bolyard

Larry Bolyard retires after serving Potomac State College for 35 years. Larry has held an amazing range of titles at the college: Professor of Physical Education, Coordinator of Athletics, Coordinator of Physical Education, Baseball Coach, Assistant Football Coach, Men's Basketball Coach, Assistant Basketball Coach, Women's Basketball Coach, Tennis Coach, Director of Intramurals, Chair of the Potomac State Athletic Hall of Fame, and Master of Ceremonies of the Hall of Fame Banquet.

Larry has a long history of keeping himself busy. At Aurora High School, he played four years of basketball and four of baseball. At Shepherd College, he played basketball and baseball with enough distinction to be named Most Outstanding Senior Athlete.

Prior to his years at Potomac State, Larry taught and coached for seven years at Rappahannock County High School, Washington, Virginia.

Larry has also belonged to nine professional associations and is active in the Keyser Lions and in Grace United Methodist Church. He and his wife, Joan, have three married children: Larry Jr. and wife Eva; Tracey and husband Rich; and Scott and wife Alison. Larry and Joan also have three grandchildren: Meghan, Ryan, and Lauren.

After retiring from the college, Larry looks forward to enjoying golf and other sports, gardening, wood working and refinishing furniture.

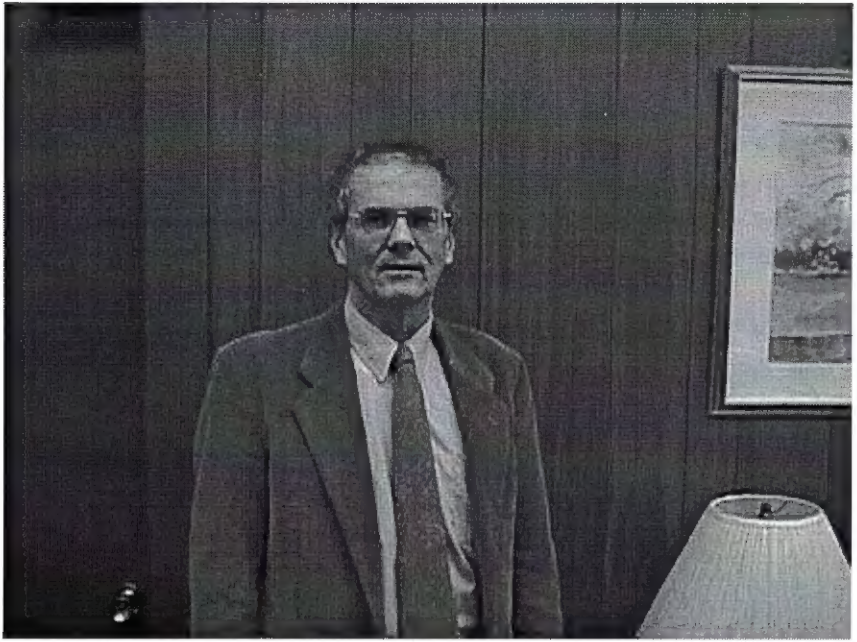

Patricia K. Lindsey

Patricia K. Lindsey has completed 25 years of service to Potomac State College, of which she is an alumna. Beginning as a faculty secretary, she soon became an admissions secretary and then a records assistant. Her work in Admissions and Records puts her in direct contact with virtually every student who enters the college.

Besides handling much of the endless stream of paper that moves through her office, Patty has also come close to keeping a stream flowing at American Red Cross blood drives, for which she is the proud holder of a 5-Gallon Pin.

Patty and her husband Robert enjoy traveling, shopping, working in the yard, and watching and attending sports events.

Edward M. Wade

Edward Wade is celebrating 25 years of service to Potomac State College. Ed has taught thousands of our students art appreciation, drawing, painting, sculpture and other topics. Ed holds his masters degree from New York University and has additional graduate credits at Syracuse University.

Having worked in design and promotion for a publisher, editing and reporting for a magazine company, and art gallery promotion for an artists' association, Ed brought the college a lot of experience in commercial art and related areas.

In addition to his work in business, Ed also taught in the public schools prior to teaching at Potomac State.

A member of national and state organizations for art teachers, Ed also has a number of hobbies: collecting humor, collecting post cards, studying financial markets, and perusing materials about the world and its history.

Ed and his former wife Patricia are the proud parents of Christopher, a business major, and Jennifer, a nurse.
